

Descending from the 16th century thick coated Labrador Newfoundlands, whose job it was retrieving fishing nets from the cold treacherous waters off Newfoundland, Canada.

Labrador Retriever

Traded to English sailors through the centuries, they were refined by breeders in England for use as gundogs.

Introduced to America in 1917, it soon became popular with the waterfowl and upland game hunters.

This sturdy gregarious, gentle, well-balanced, eager to please, water lover is at home in the field, the show ring, the family circle, or as a guide or rescue dog.

Wt. 55-80 lbs.

Ht. 22-1/2 - 24-1/2"

Fox red to cream, chocolate and black

Ownership requirements are simple: Regular exercise, companionship, proper nutrition and above all, remember their love of water.

Notes from Afield. Labrador Retriever

© Daniel Van Zyle. 2019. All rights reserved. danielvanzyle.com

Daniel Van Zyle